To help the student perceive more deeply, care more fully, and express more effectively: such are ideals of an English curriculum. Lofty though these goals may be, hopefully our program will help develop perception, perception which may be visual for some, auditory for some, intellectual for others. May our program also heighten concern for the human issues that the artist ponders as well as the medium that transmits the message. Finally may our program present ways to express human experience but leave open for the individual student some choice as to the form that will serve him best.

"a different approach to the study of man . . ."

On the rapid the other day she asked my why I was carting a copy of Hamlet around. I said it was because I was reading it for Humanities. She asked me if I liked the course and I said I liked it well enough. I told her it was a different approach to man. It was interesting to relate literature to art and music. It was an opportunity to pull together all aspects of man's nature and to regard them simultaneously.

“ . . . the teacher
is a student
as well as a guide . . . ”

In 1971-1972 the Social Studies Department has greatly emphasized bringing together people who want to know with those who wish to teach.

Contemporary America and its plethora of mini-courses has attempted to do just that. The mini-courses represent a logical period of growth from the myriad numbers of electives the department has been offering over the years.

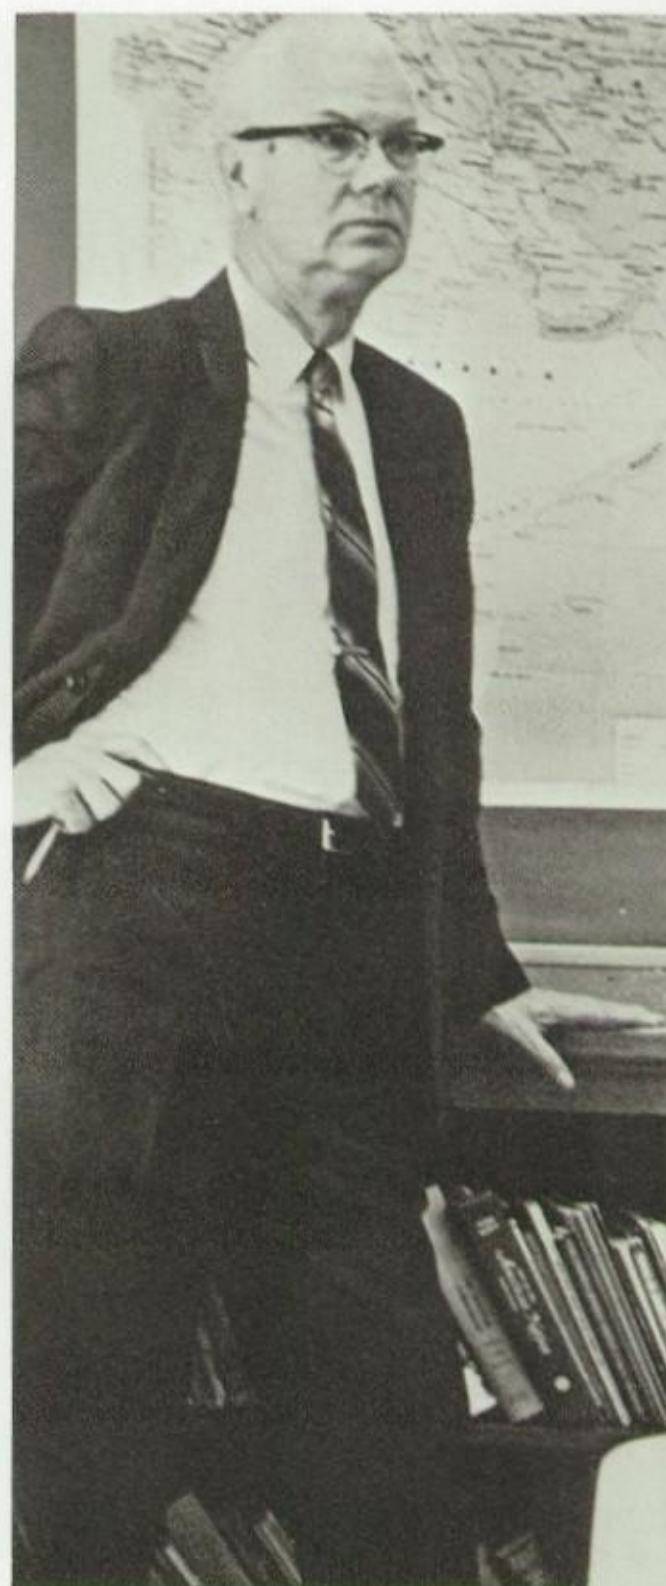

The hope of the staff is to involve as many human beings as possible in a total learning experience. Our goals for this year and for the future revolve around our own needs in which the teacher is a student as well as guide.

seniors go to camp

The Contemporary American Present (CAMP) course was new to Shaker this year and a requirement for all seniors. It consisted of four nine-week mini-courses, on subjects from death and dying to criminology. At the end of each nine-week session each teacher summarized the course that he would teach during the next session. Students could then choose which mini-course they would take, and only a nine-week course in government was mandatory.

The Contemporary American Present course is unique at Shaker. You have to take it, but you can still have some choice in what you are going to learn.

french is the bon-i-part of my day

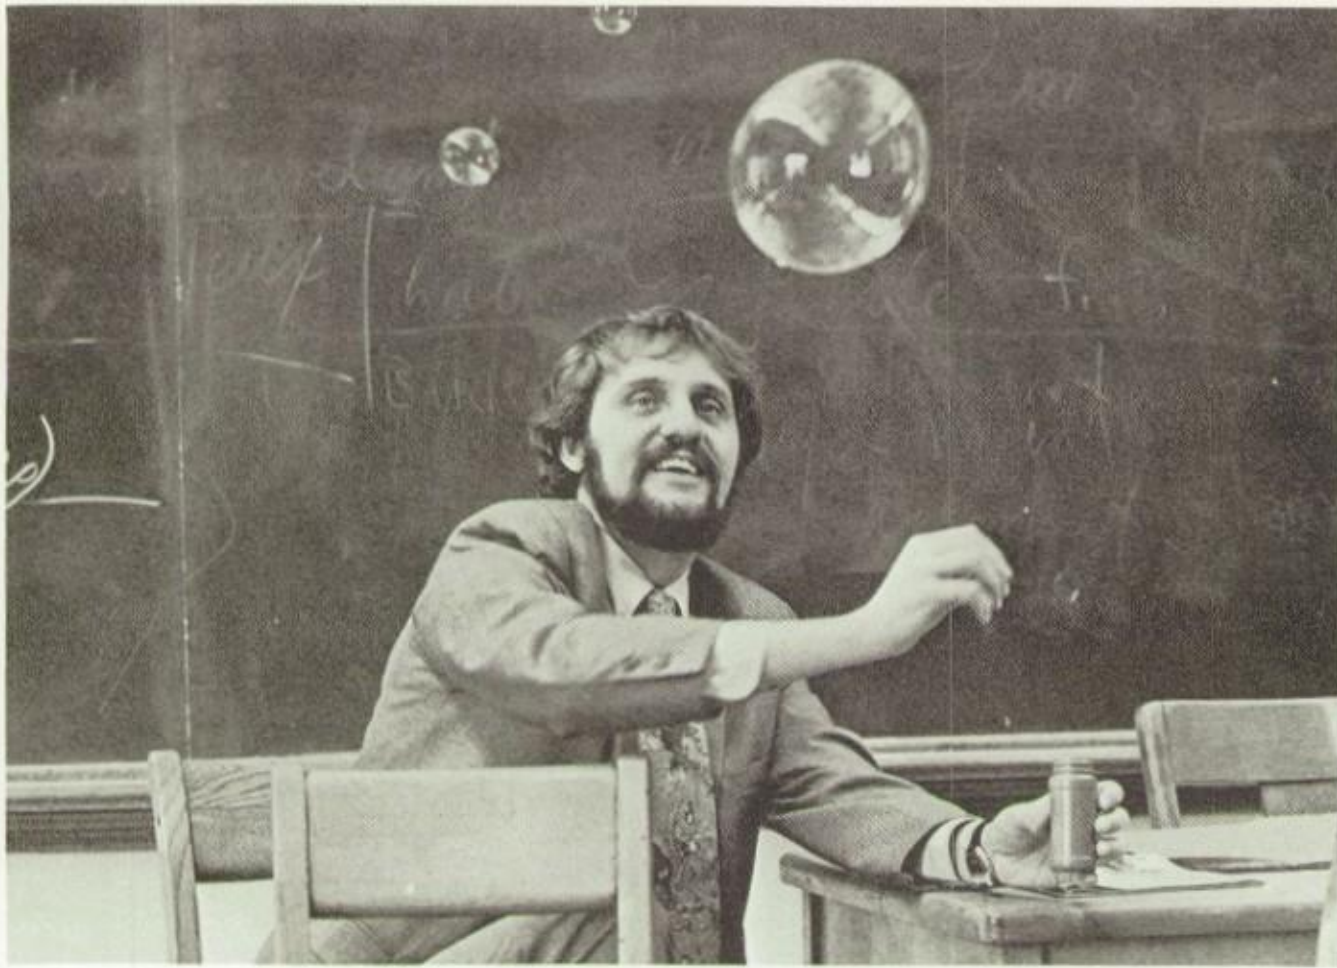

The Foreign Language Department offers students an opportunity to become fluent in French, Spanish and German. There is also ample opportunity to become familiar with the culture and language of the Romans and Greeks.

In the future we plan to expand the number of courses available in each area. This will allow students the advantage of pursuing individual, particular interests.

“ . . . science
by any other name will still be
science . . . ”

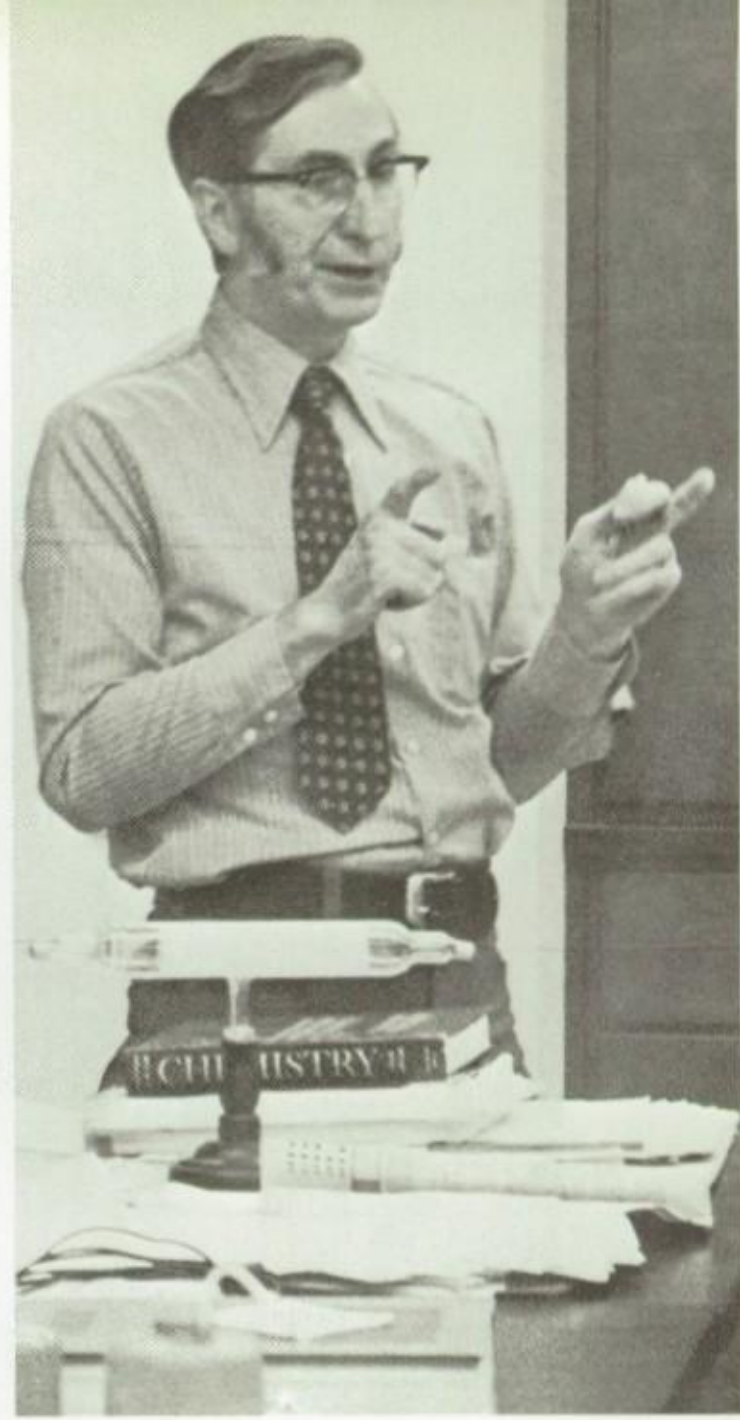

Science by any other name will still be science — the study of the interactions of matter and energy in animate and inanimate materials. Because of a consuming curiosity . . . man will continue his study and search for unifying principles, for the fundamental nature of matter, and into . . . the origin of life itself. In turn, man (society) must also determine the manner in which new knowledge is to be best used for man's greatest, overall, long-term benefit. A major step to provide some of this needed background knowledge and an illustration of how it can be used was the addition of unique format of earth science into our curriculum this year, with emphasis on our air and water environment. Our curriculum must continue to offer Shaker students such a science background, and skills of “learning how to learn,” to promote his and her scientific and social literacy. Interdepartmental activity, especially with social studies should further promote an opportunity to develop this ability.

never are we finished in mathematics . . .

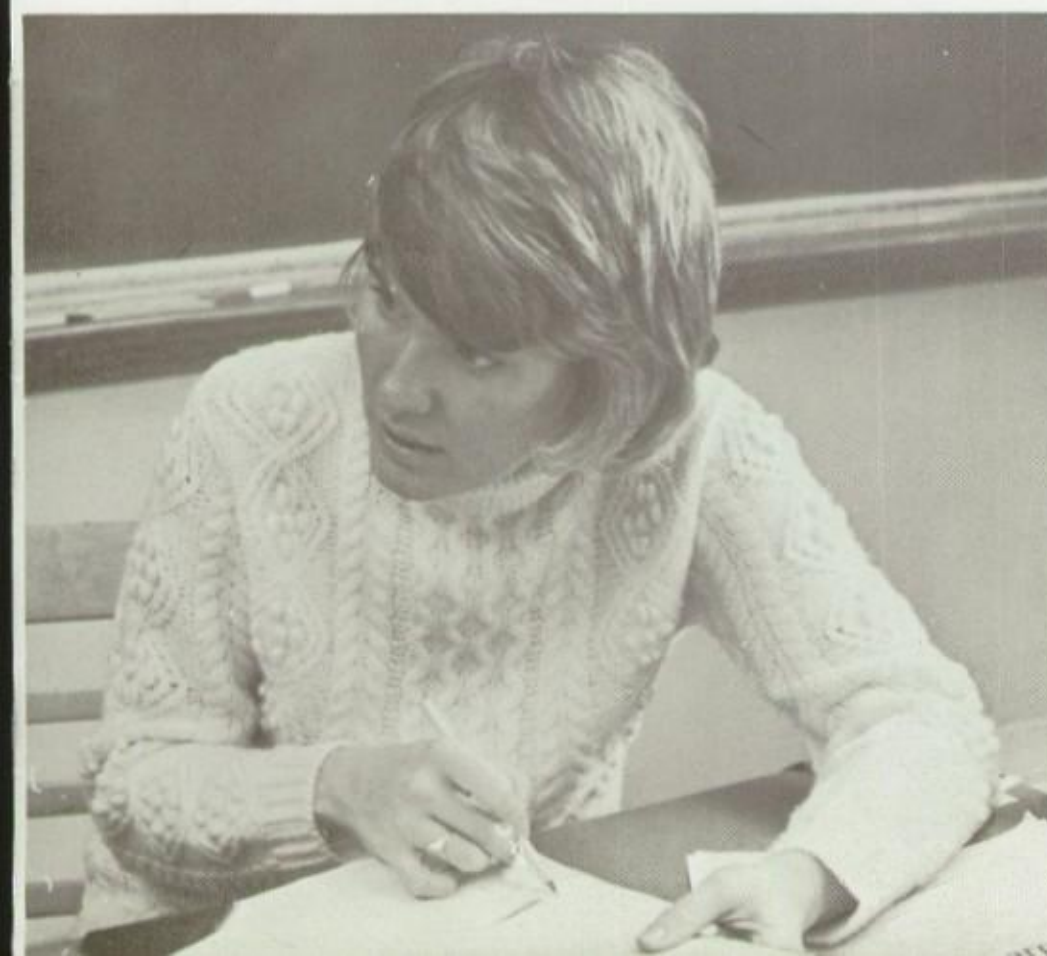

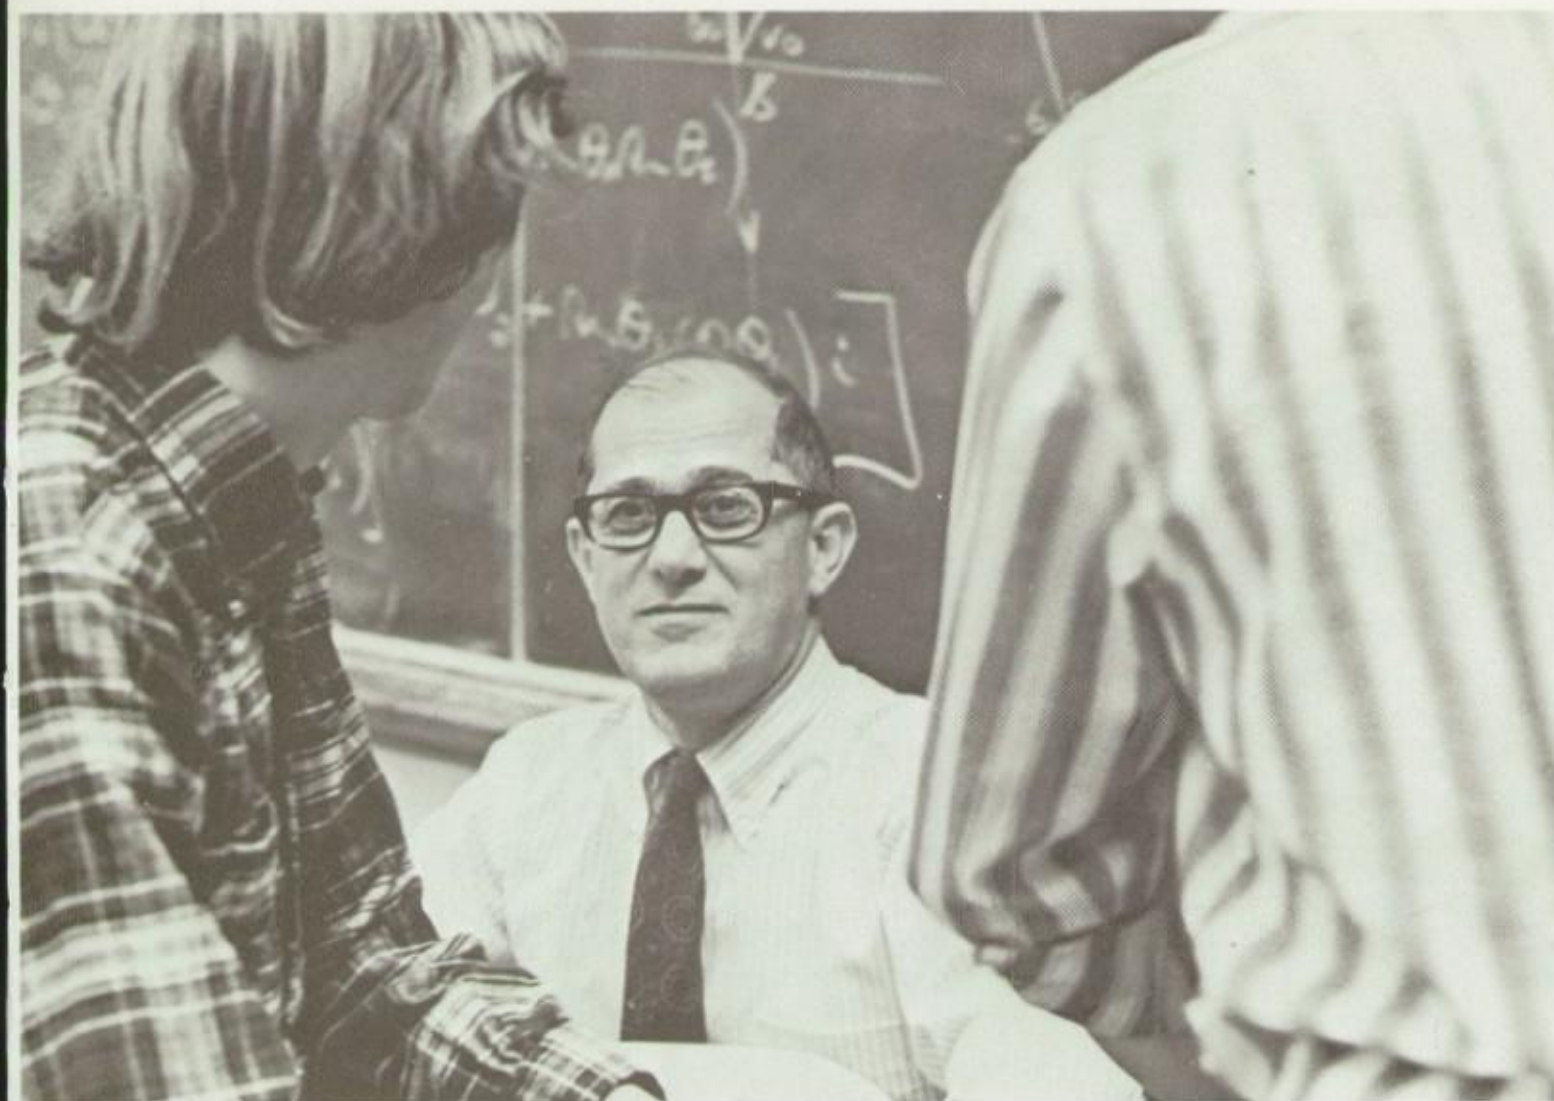

More mathematics is created daily than one could even read about were he to spend 24 hours per day in reading. The main task, therefore, of the mathematics department is to teach a good sound body of mathematics upon which the student can build, to keep abreast of the most significant of the new mathematics so that our courses can reflect the newest and best thinking in mathematics, and to help our students gain a method of attacking a completely new bit of mathematics so that they may become more and more independent in their study, mastery and perhaps even creation of mathematics. These are the broad goals. The more immediate goals are, obviously, to have a set of courses available for all aptitudes and interests, and to help the students realize the mastery of these courses. It should be remembered that never are we finished in mathematics; there is always more good mathematics to learn!

School isn't really anything more than formulas. Formulas like we learn in math or in science. How to do research papers. How to write terms. How to find anything. It's all done through doing the right formula. That's what we are learning, not facts, but, formulas.

les mills' "shaker jungle" evokes varied responses

"I believe we are making an intelligent search for better education, without sacrificing scholarship."

"It is still a great place for learning precisely because it is not content to be what it once was but continues to change along with a rapidly changing society."

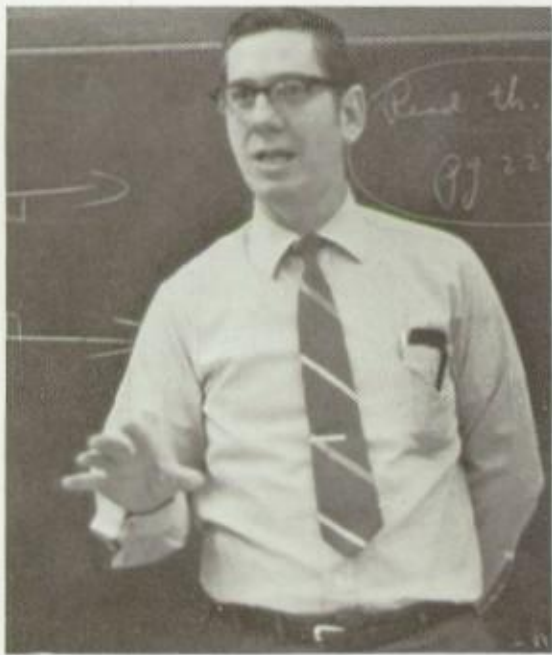

"It is very clear that those parents and youths who are willing to invest time and effort in understanding each other are far ahead in their ability to learn and to live fully."

"If neat grooming were a requisite for intelligence and civility, then most of the scholars and idols of Western Civilization would be ruled out."

"Perhaps a riot plus a few jail sentences would have been in the long run the course more conducive to educating more people well."

"This school has its faults, and there are some serious ones. Least of our problems however, is how students look and dress."

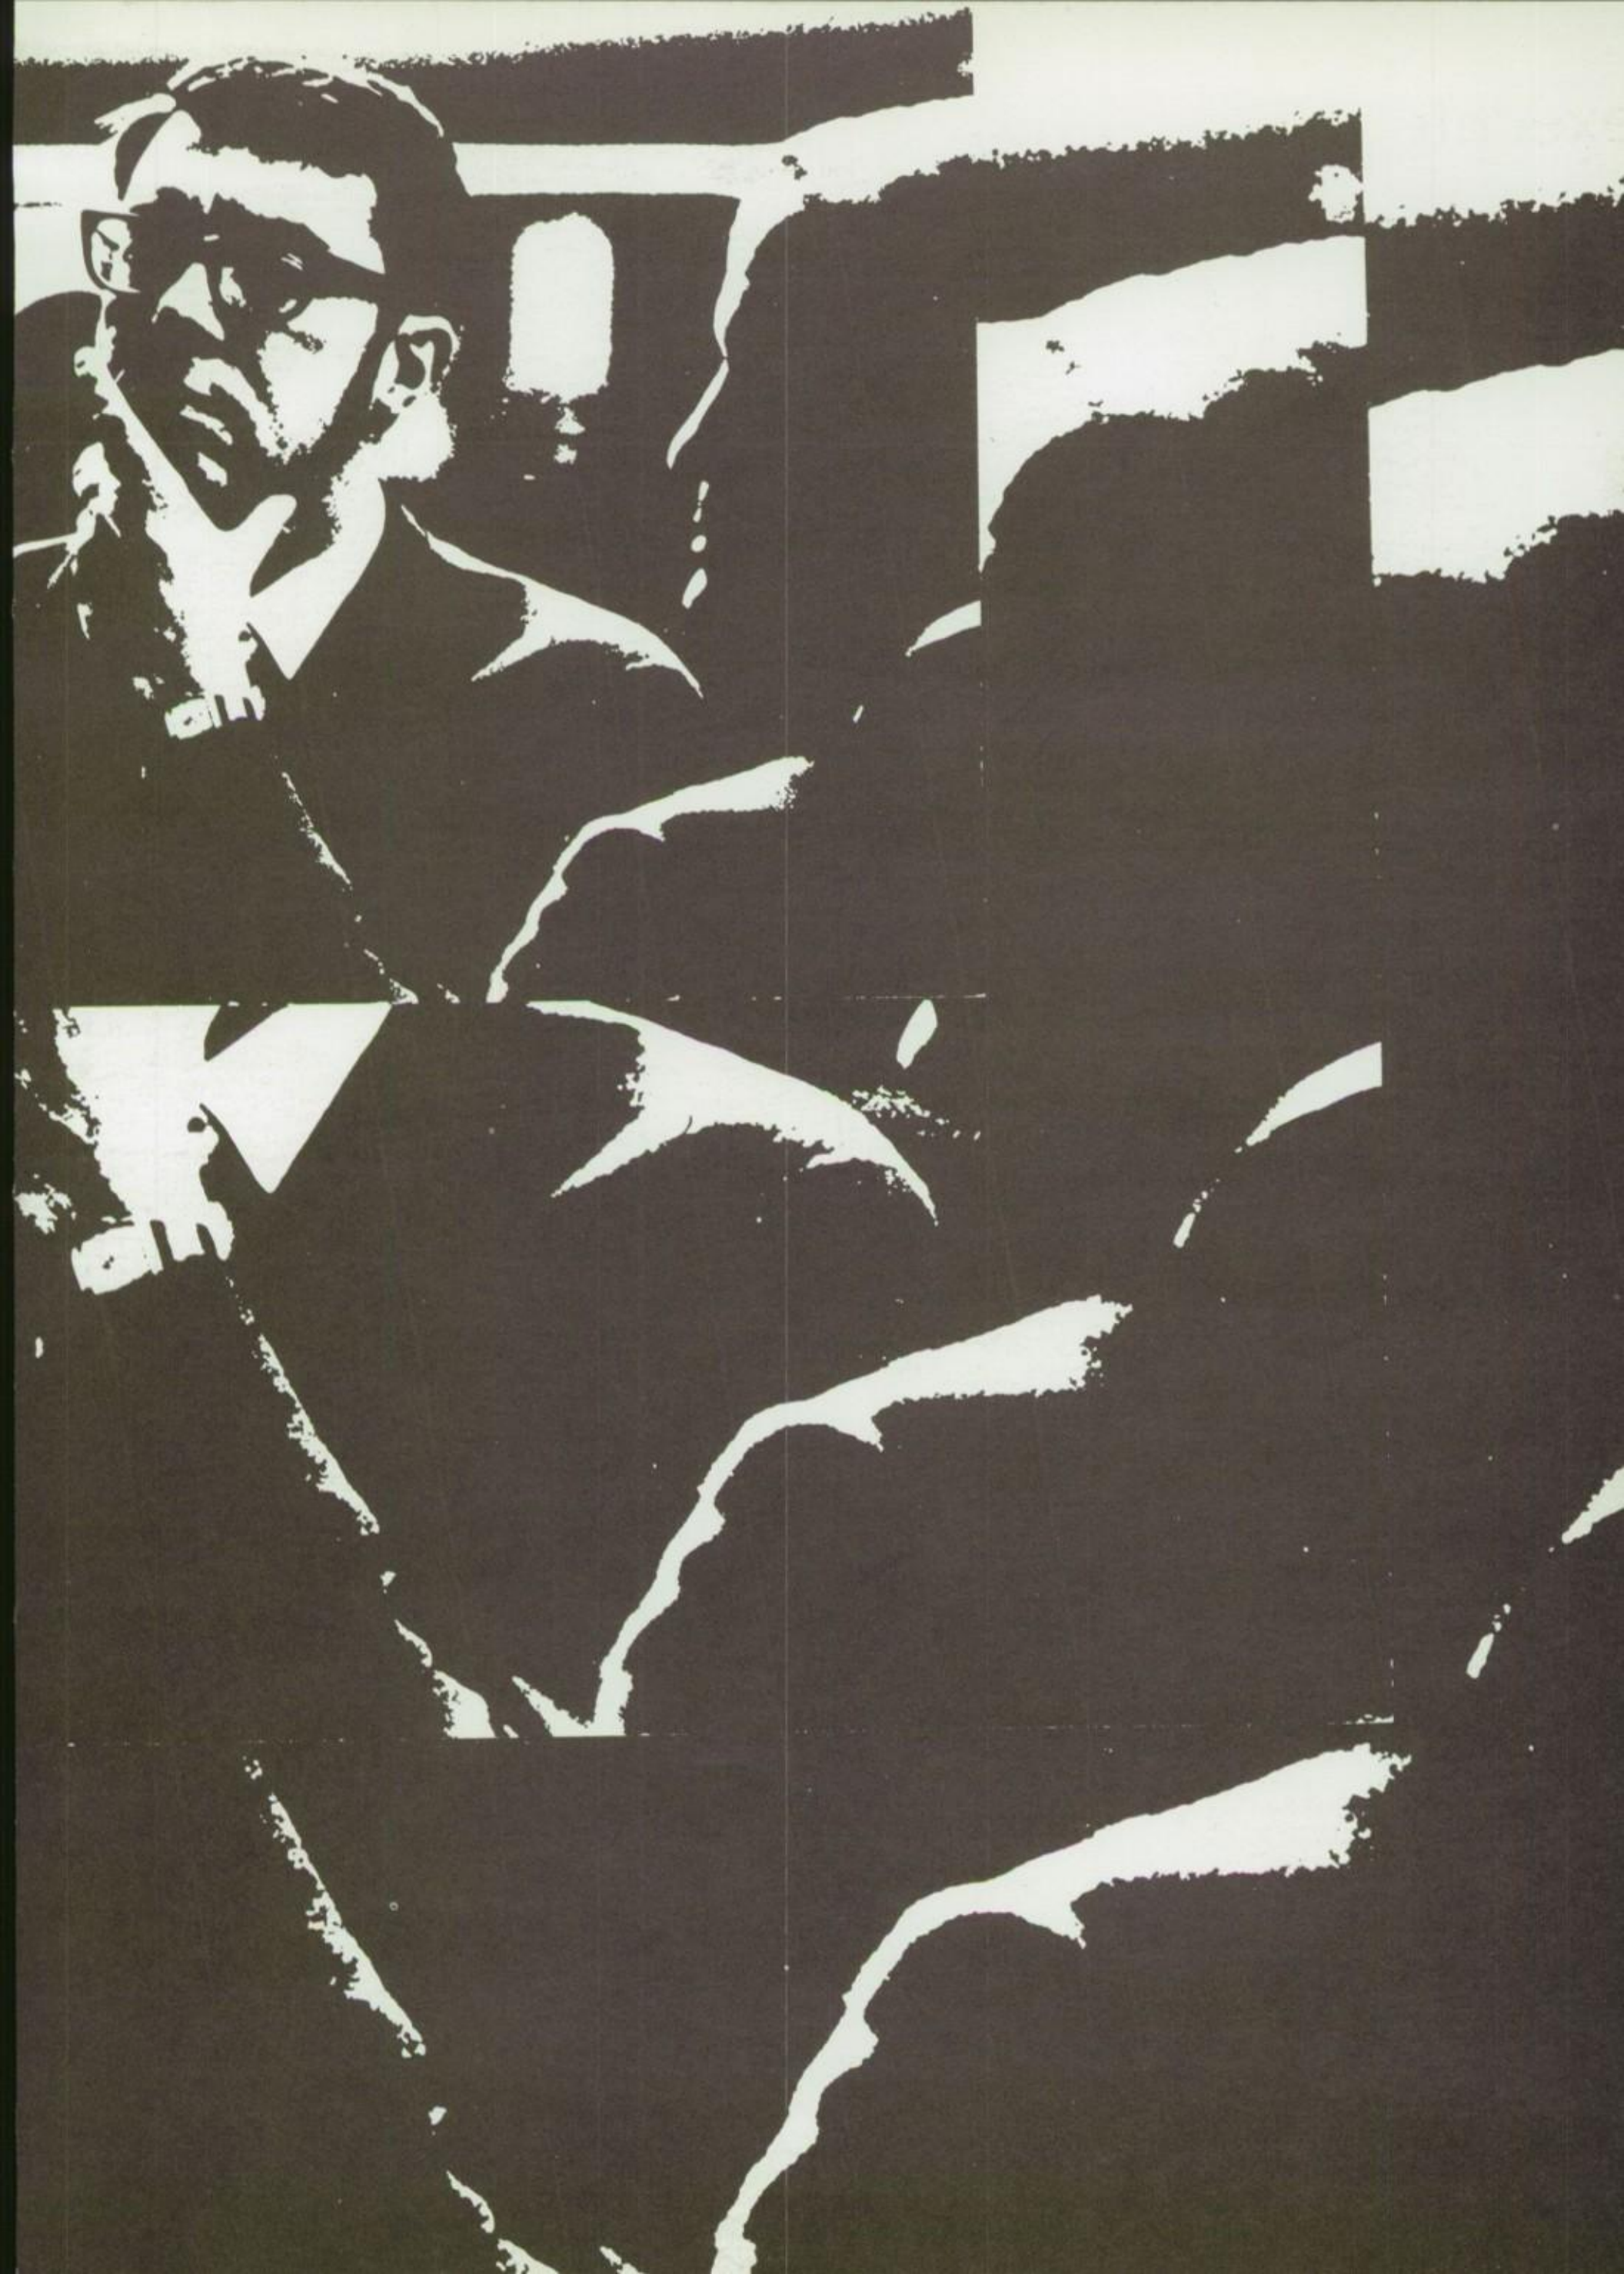

"When I was hired by the Board of Education, I was not instructed to make clothing models out of students."

"It is sad to me that the students who are here must be subject to value judgments by persons and groups who have 'failed' in elementary understanding of research."

"If it is a jungle, then we've cut the trees down."

If one is devoted to conformity and appalled by diversity, he will be uncomfortable at Shaker High. If one is completely dedicated to flexibility and abhors structure, he, too, will be uncomfortable at Shaker High. But, if one is able to profitably mix a good measure of diversity and flexibility with a good measure of structure required in a large high school, he will not only be comfortable at Shaker High, but should flourish in this school environment. Shaker High, in my judgement, is an interesting and alive school. It may not be the best, but I don't know of a better one.

shakerite: one of the best in the country — without charge

It is doubtful that more than three-fourths of the students at Shaker ever receive a Shakerite. It is doubtful that more than half of those who do, ever give the paper more than a superficial glance. Yet the Shakerite editors and reporters continue to publish one of the best high school newspapers in the country and to distribute it without charge. They do so because it is they who receive the true benefit of their publication — the joys of working as a team, challenging the ideas of others, and ultimately producing works of art.

There's more to the Junior Council on World Affairs and the Youth Council on Human Relations than their flashy multi-syllabic names.

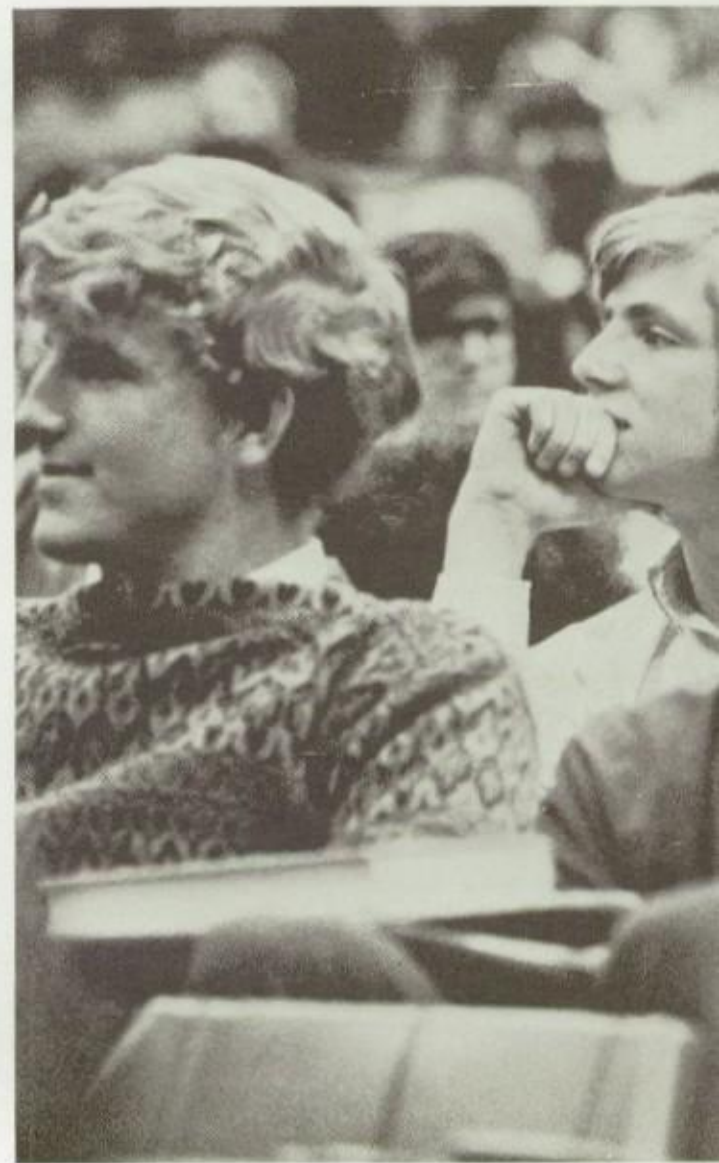

Members of Junior Council, under the guidance of Mr. Marvin Dress, discuss the world at large. The emergence of Bangla Desh, the conflict in Northern Ireland, the admission of Red China to the United Nations, and the American involvement in Southeast Asia are topics of discussion at their meetings. This year, several members of the organization participated in a radio discussion on world affairs.

A goal of the members of the Youth Council and their sponsor, Mr. Baird Wiehe, is to establish a widespread awareness that would lead to the development of a sense of community at Shaker. One of their more successful activities was an evening sensitivity session that was open to all interested Shaker people.

When you get to be old it's hard to change your clothes without breaking your back. Last year Student Council was old. Its committees were no longer functioning, it didn't follow through on its efforts, even its leadership was failing. It was time to change. One of the most important innovations this year was Council membership. In the past each homeroom elected a representative, while this year Council members were elected by each class.

It is true that Council in the beginning had trouble turning ideas into actions. One of the problems of the nineteen-member Council was that it lacked a central authority for checking up on actions. The committee system, however, was much more effective. While many committees remained non-functional, the Student Aid, Welfare, and Assembly-Seminar Committees worked throughout the year. Curriculum Committee conducted an extensive survey and later drew up several proposals to improve the quality of education. Some of the junior and senior members of Student Council worked with Community Council, a group of parents, teachers, administrators, and students, in order to implement alternatives in education in the fall of 1972.

The possibilities for improving Student Council and its role in decision-making in the High School are countless. Student Council has come a long way toward becoming an effective organization, but there is still a long way to go.

Community Council has worked on the reappraisal of the curriculum at Shaker and has formulated four new alternative plans to traditional education. These plans include Catalyst, Work-Study, Flexible Studies, and an expansion of the already existing Independent Study. Community Council members include students Allen Mooney, Zachery Green, Natalie Booker, Paul Campbell, Holly Federico, Charlie Fox, Randy Ginn, Sue Braham, Nancy Goulder, Ira Kaplan, Elliott Negin, Kim Ringler, Jessie Roberson, and Sally Rocker; parents Mrs. Charles Dalton, Mrs. Roger Jackson, Mrs. L. Lenkoski, and Mrs. Wm. Mitchell, and teachers and administrators Mrs. Gifford, Mr. Looney, Mr. McNamara, Mr. Trost, Mr. Caldwell, Dr. Greenham, Dr. McMillan, Mr. Mohny, Mr. Senft, and Mr. Zimmerman.

Some people seem to think that S.B.I. is a failure because of the poor turnouts at our meetings. In the minds of the officers, this is not an indication of failure because those people that do attend are the ones that are interested in black awareness. Personally, I do not have the knowledge to teach black awareness, and teaching awareness is not the purpose of S.B.I. Our purpose is to give the black Shaker student a chance to express himself and, if possible, to find an ideology that is satisfying. We plan to give the student an opportunity to teach himself about black awareness with the resources of the S.B.I. black library. S.B.I. cannot teach. It can only give those that wish to learn a chance to do so. This, in my opinion, is the best that anyone can do for the black people.

" . . . It is very nice to have another sister that you love very much. And are we not only friends but sisters? The country where you live does not make any difference, it is the idea, the feeling and the way of life that connects people. And, I think, we came very close together although you stayed in our house just a very short time. People should come together more often, maybe they would at least respect ideas of others a little more. That would help a great deal for understanding. And once you are able to understand someone you will mostly be able to find out the good part of his heart and you will love him because of that. It seems so easy, yet history never showed that it is easy. But actually all I want to say is, that we love you because of you and because it is you who lived with us . . ."

Ursula Dingerzieg of Germany, in a letter to Rosalind van Stolk.

The Prophet and his followers had gathered at the end of the East Hall. One amongst the throng, a Shakerite reporter, said, "Speak to us of the kinship of teachers and students."

After pondering the Prophet spoke:

"A class is as a wagon's wheel."

"But how can this be?" inquired one of the crowd.

The Prophet embellished.

"A class is as a wagon's wheel. Surrounded by a circling rim of humanity is a single human axle from which radiate many spokes. This axle, drawn on from so many sources, is stressed. Thus, the central figure works more at maintaining the function of the entire system than at cultivating separate interests."

"Is this to say that one student and one teacher can never attain a mutual and personal respect?" injected one long-haired youth.

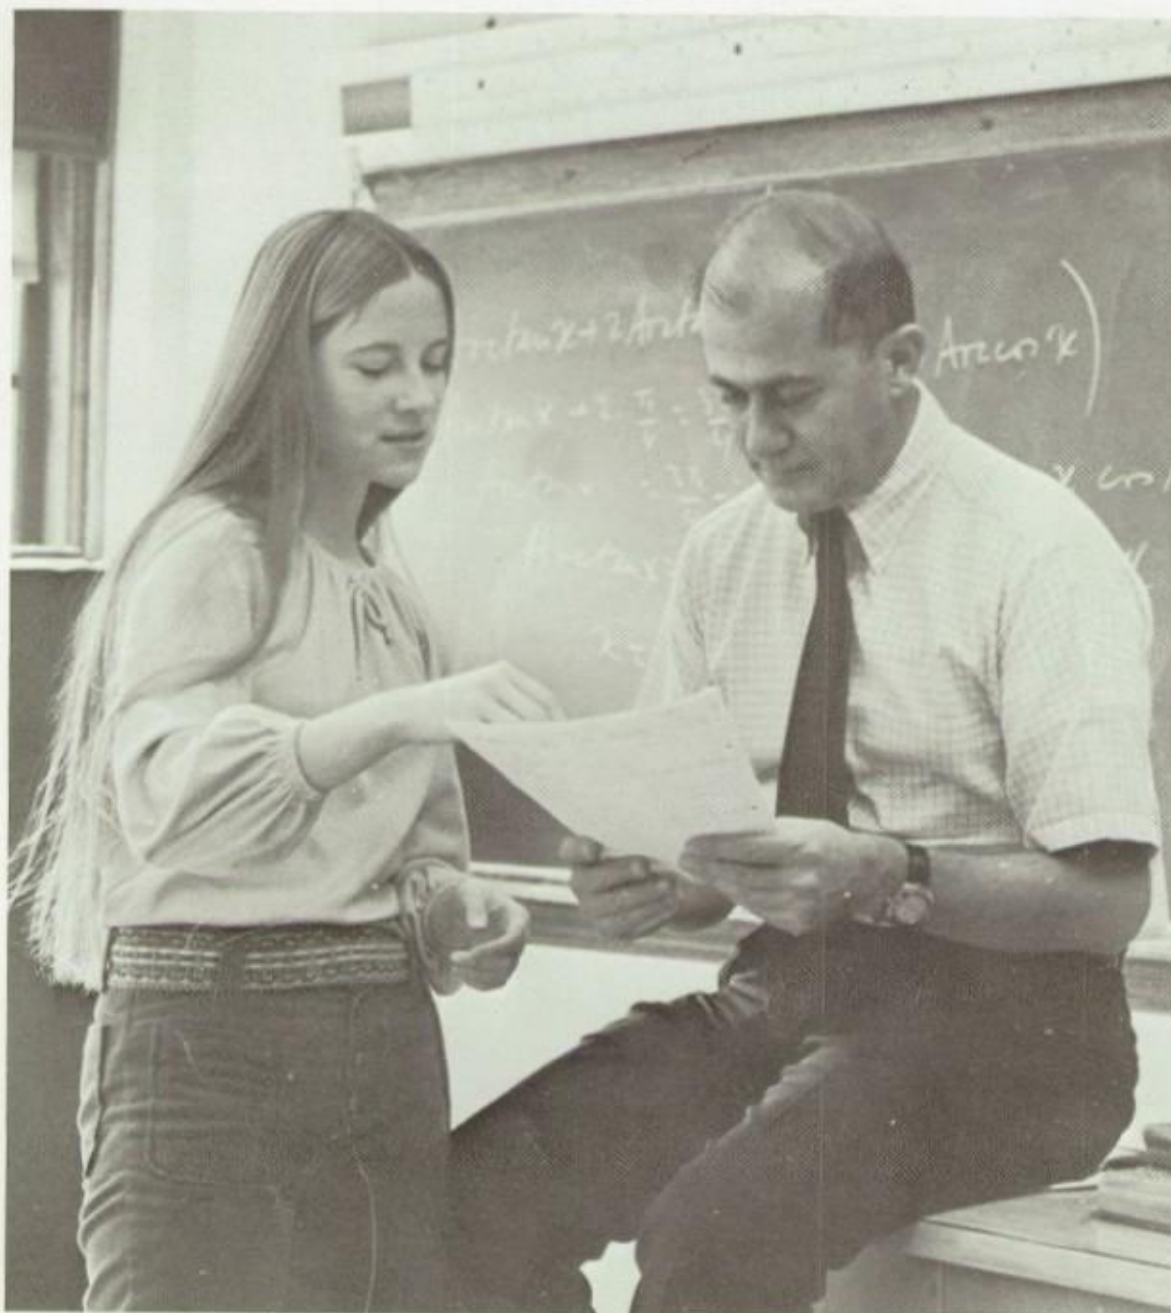

"No, not at all," assured the Prophet. "But it is truthful to say that the spokes — the channels of communication — are barbed with red-tape responsibilities with which the teacher must comply. Hence, the roles of rim and axle, student and teacher are defined and separated, and much humanness is lost in the relationship."

"Only a few times does one of the rim and the one of the axle overcome their obstacles to make their mutual spoke a unique bond."

"Finally, my friends, look to the wheels of a school. One need not look long before he understands the way in which the school moves."

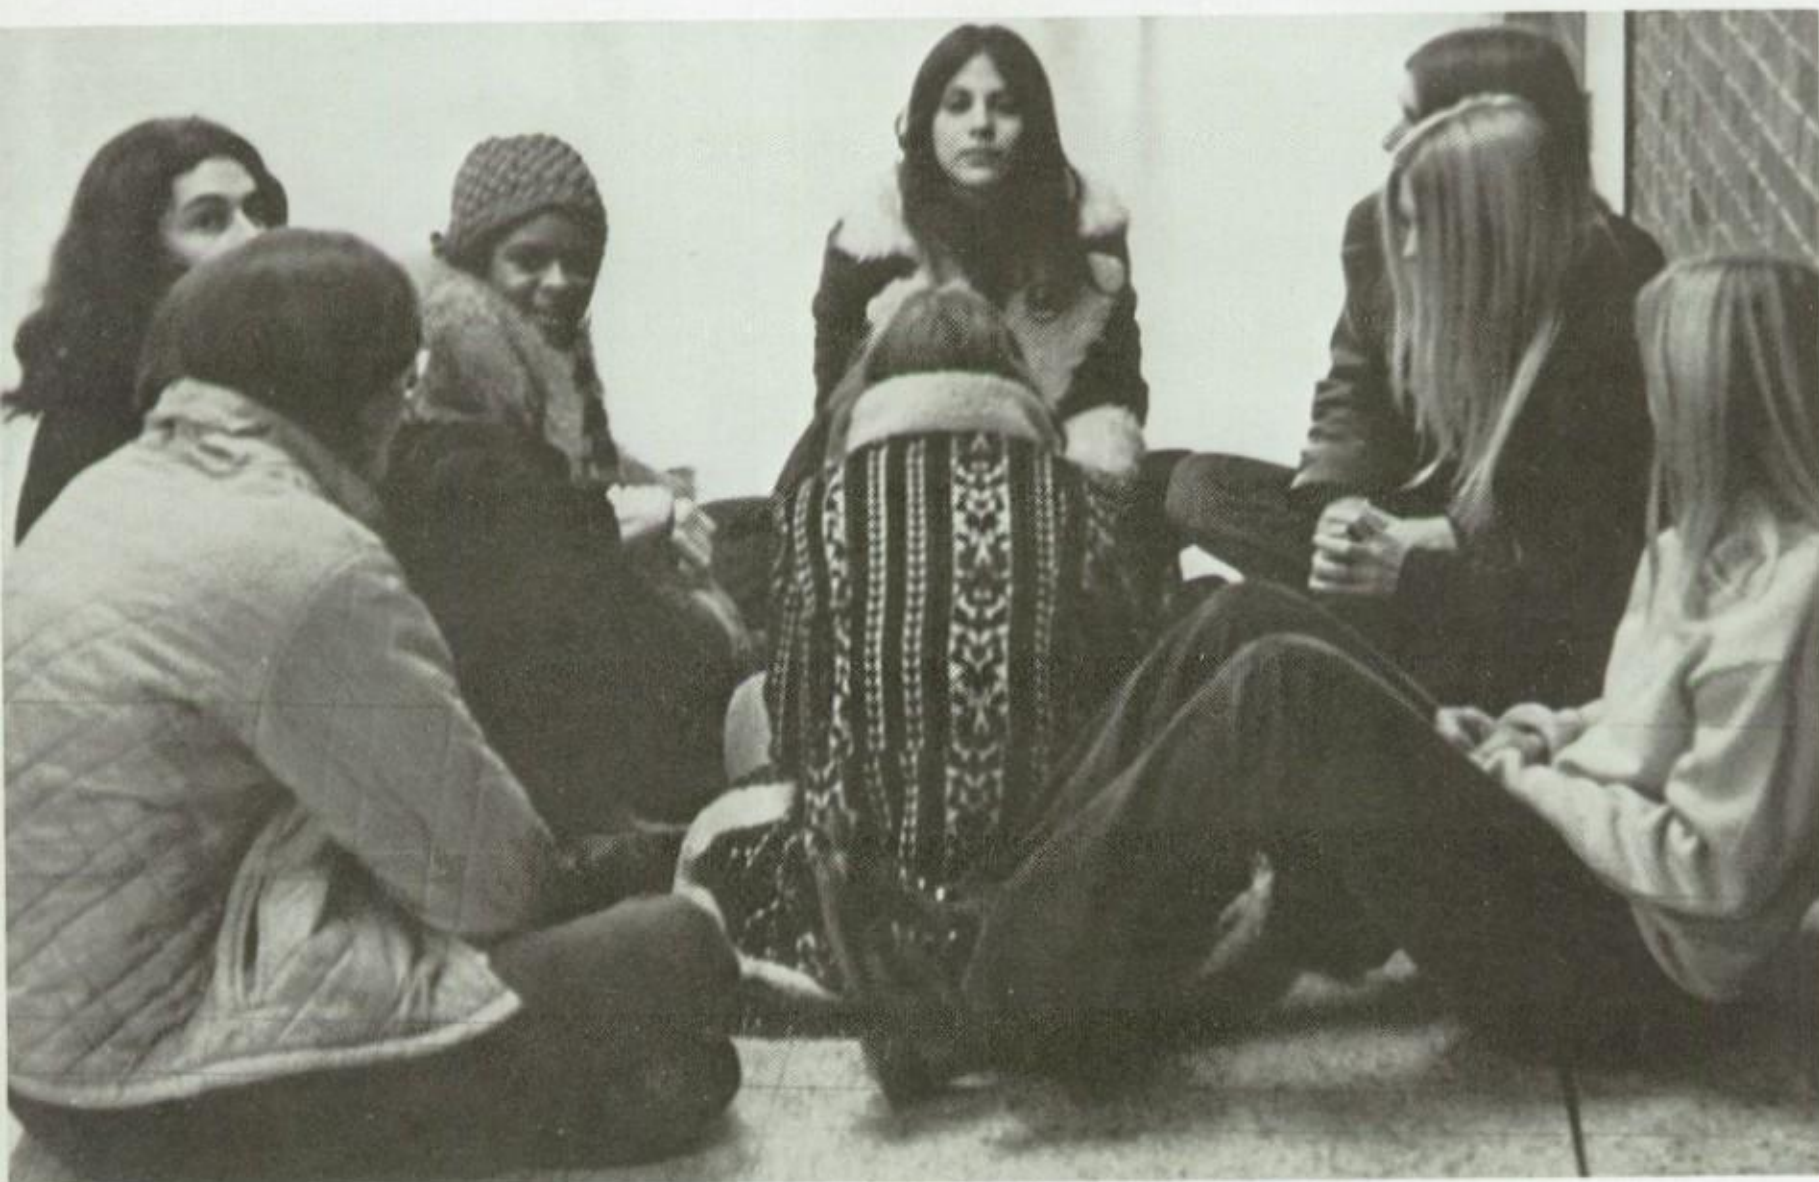

Upon the utterance of these words, the marvelling crowd and their Prophet were interrupted by a teacher hall-guard who asked if they wouldn't like to move out of the hall and perhaps go to the library conference rooms or maybe to the cafeteria or . . .

At first glance Churchill's statement seems to have little to do with Shaker's Varsity Gridders. The Raiders were rumored to be the worst team in the league. Yet the team appeared that they had nothing to lose. Yet the team had enough knowledge and pride to prove that they were far better than what the rumors claimed. The tiny team from Shaker that should have lost all of its games won five games.

The squad was backed by Scott Keller, who was chosen for the L.E.L. all star team, The Press Star Team and The Plain Dealer Dream Team. Junior running back Sebraien Haygood earned positions on The Press and Plain Dealer teams. Other outstanding players were Darrell Austin, Terry Curtain, Bill Vandeenboom, Danny Little, Anthony Brantley and Paul Mason. However, as in all team sports, the efforts of the team as a whole must be, and were, greater than those of separate players. Coach Al Raymond boasted, "The varsity football team, with the size of little puppy dogs, performed like Saint Bernards in the eyes of the other L.E.L. teams." Shaker's team did play for more then they could afford to lose.

Unfortunately, the J.V.'s succumbed to the rumors of failure. They finished last in their league with a winless 0-10 record. Injury and illness slowly ate away at a far better team than 0 and 10. Hopefully, members of the J.V. team will be back next year to prove just how much better they really are.

keep on trekking

The 1971 Spring Track team worked long and hard to finish their season with a 5-3-1 record. Their success was due to the efforts of all the runners, hurdlers, pole vaulters, broad jumpers and shot putters. Class of '71 senior Keith Brown was the All American State Champion in the two mile run.

The 1971 Fall Cross Country team, under Coach Bob Rice, spent many long afternoons jogging around different parts of Shaker. Their efforts resulted in a record of 4-4-1.

Tennis retains third

Despite considerably improved players, the 1971 fall tennis team was unable to serve its way out of third place, the same standing it held in 1970. This standing is deceptive because the team did improve; however, the league was equally improved. Shaker won 8 out of 10 matches. Playing first singles was senior Tom Matia, 11-1, and playing second singles was junior Hal Krent, 10-2. The doubles players were Mike Butler, C.J. Kilroy, Jeff Weiss and Bill Cohen. In the L.E.L. tournament Shaker placed third over all. Returning next year will be Hal Krent and sophomore Cary Goldstein. The 1971 spring tennis placed 2-2 in the difficult private school league.

What could have been the best soccer team in Shaker's history was unable to concentrate its efforts on every game, as the 6-6-1 record shows. What the record does not show, however, is the overwhelming team spirit and love for the game. Members of the team played whenever they could, after school in the spring and at night in the summer. During the off-season they played ethnic teams, watched college matches, and played among themselves. The record also fails to show the individual accomplishments of many players. Charlie Fitzgerald, goalie and co-captain with Bob Mitchell, set the new school record of seven shut-outs, and Allan Schrader set the new record of ten points for the season. These two players were selected for the All-League team. Bob Rosenblum, wing, earned an All-League honorable mention and Dave Brinker, who played outstanding defense received an All-League honorable mention and the team's most valuable player award. However, it was the whole team working together, and not just individual players, that made the 1971 season a successful one.

The J.V. Booters live at Boulevard field. If one can get used to long grass, pipe goals, and holey nets it's not half bad. In fact, the J.V.'s got so used to it, that they pulled together a truly fine season and won 9 games. Their only loss was to U.S., whom they tied in a rematch. They were also the only Shaker soccer team, J.V. or varsity, ever to beat Hudson. They were enthusiastic about soccer and they played to win. Among the outstanding offense for coach Cahill were Steve Namkoong with 11 goals, and Ken Coan and Mark Pogue, each with 10 goals. Those playing outstanding defense were Ed Algeo, John Landefeld, D.J. Schultz, L.J. Daniels, and goalie Craig Cobb. All will prove to be valuable assets to the varsity squad next year.

down the foe . . .

A devoted team is made up of players that practice and drill after school for hours in all kinds of weather. A devoted fan is one who attends the games in cold, windy weather to root the teams on with cheers like "every corner is a goal". Though the season was not a record one, the large amount of devotion shown to field hockey was sincere. The senior team, which finished with a record of 2-5-0, scored, in total, more goals than other teams scored against them and lost their games by narrow margins. Coach Mary Ellen Leuty commented that the team played hard and well, especially against Laurel's hockey team, their strongest opponent. The junior team's record of 0-2-4 seems disappointing, but the team, coached by Dorothy Hill, played skillfully and had excellent defensive players. The sophomore team lost both their games, but at the same time most of the players displayed a great deal of potential skill. All of the hockey games drew a number of spectators, and the season, in perspective, was a good one.

1971 was not a good season for the wrestling team. Despite continued efforts the team failed to win any of their 13 matches. One rewarding result of all the effort was that two wrestlers, Jim Dotson and Steve Taylor, placed third in the sectional L.E.L. match and went on to compete in the district match.

"A pleasant disappointment," said Coach Dan Cahill. The pleasantries began with the first meet, an upset victory over Hawken. The disappointments followed shortly, with a touch-out 48-47 loss to Cleveland Heights and a bitter 49-46 loss at the hands of U.S. Led by record-smashing sophomore Dick Brown and senior three-year lettermen Jim Kuhn, Tad Mock, and Dave Newman, their potential was rarely reached except in a few beautiful meets, one of which was the second-try trouncing of Heights. (Underclass surprises Alcorn and Bombelles aided both the J.V. and Varsity.)

The 1971-72 swim squad, Cahill's first team of his own, was cemented by spirit. "Shaker is the loudest team in the city," complimented one impressed Euclid Swimmer. Under Dan's direction, this year's swimmers, when they came together as a team and even when finishing with a deceptively weak 9-7 record, were the best Shaker has fielded in a long time.

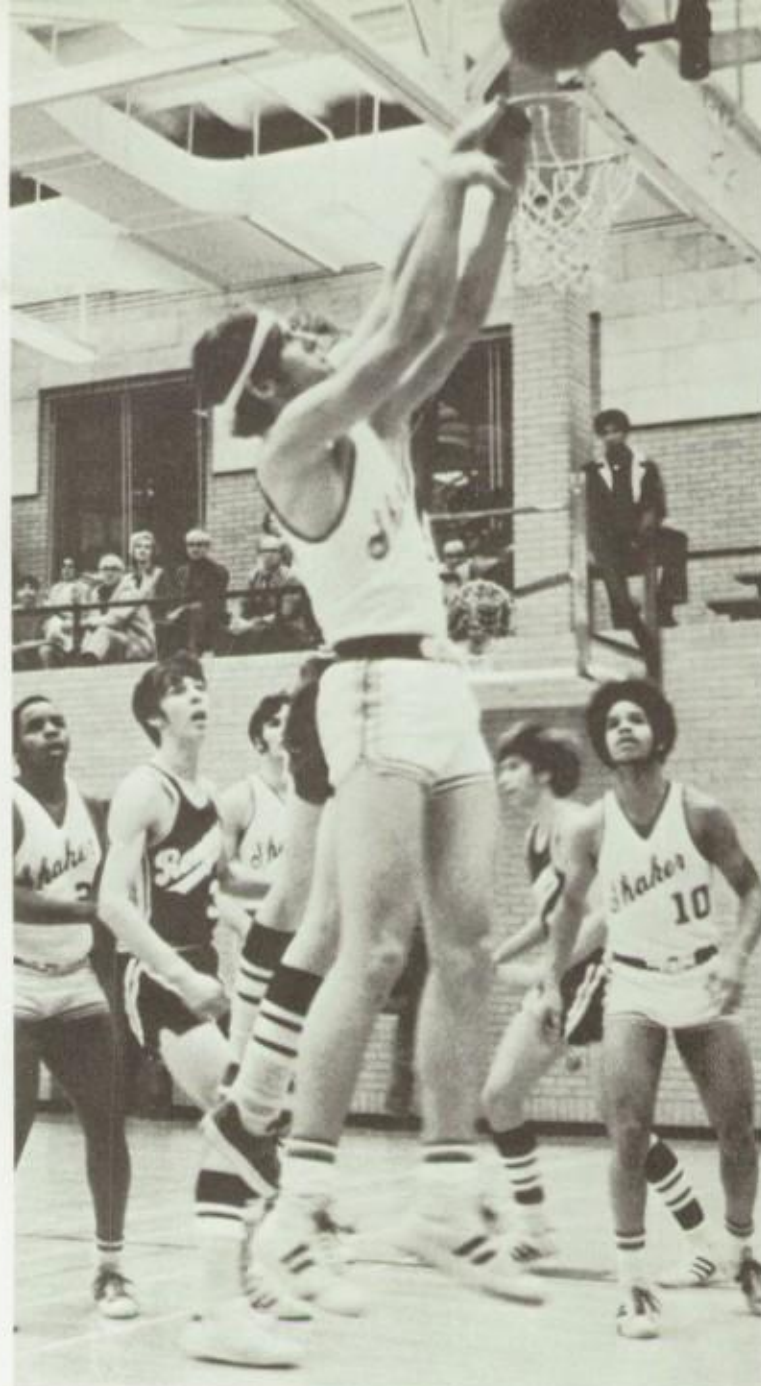

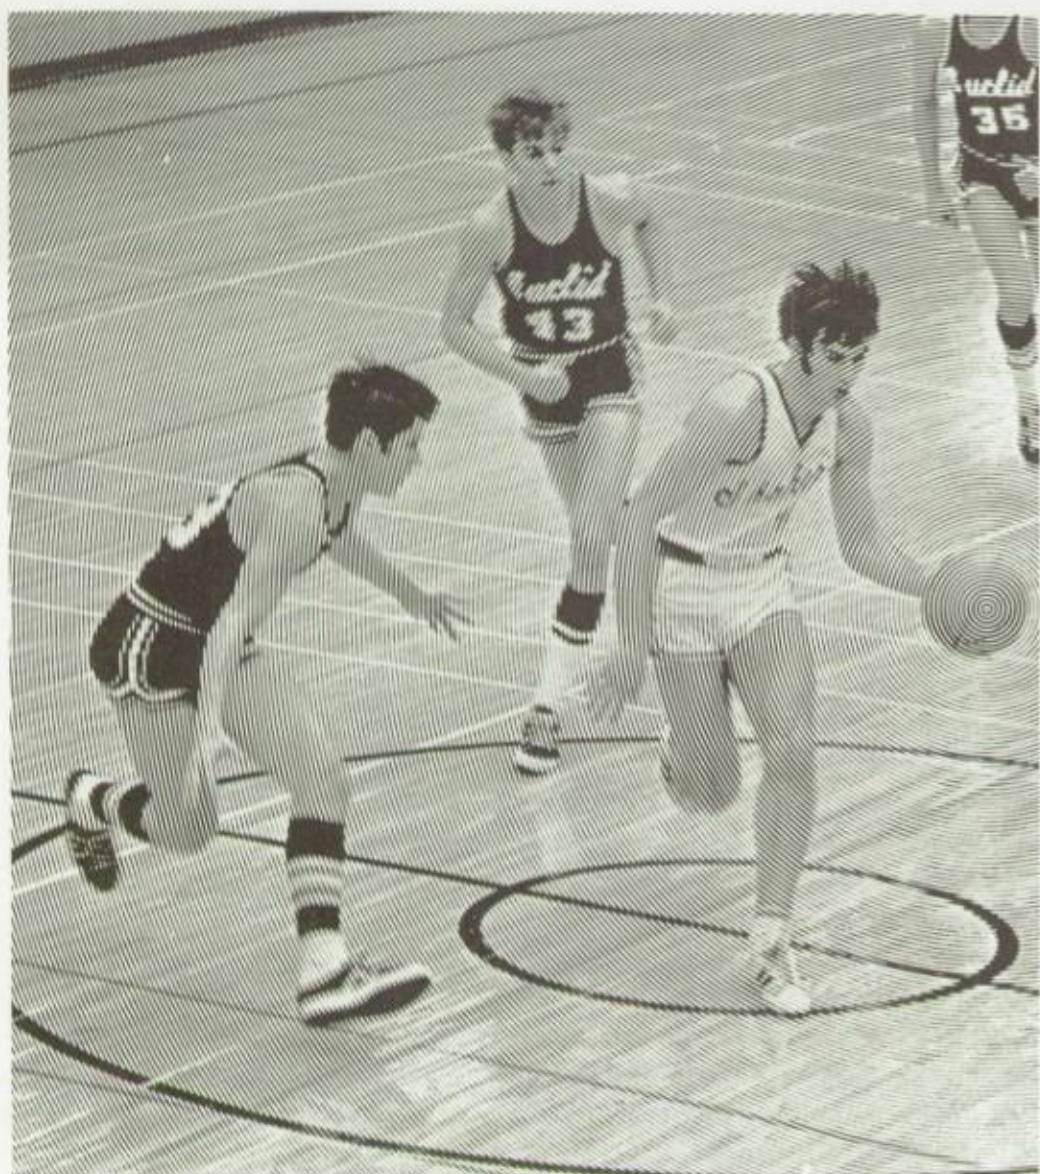

Volleyball is definitely one of the favorite girls' sports. There was not only a large turnout for the intramural program, but an excellent varsity program also. The senior varsity team was undefeated in the seven matches that it played, while the junior team only lost two matches. A team of the best players was formed for the Inter-City Tournament; they became the inter-city champs. Volleyball is also a popular spectator sport, especially with Miss Burkett yelling, "Come on, you baby ducks, let's get it over!"

competition is the lifeblood of sports, not victory alone

Robert Creamer

Defeat is not always easy to accept. The varsity and junior varsity basketball team records of 1-17 and 6-12 were disappointing to say the least, and a great deal of apathy arose during the season. It is not the season record, however, that should be considered when the quality of a team is determined, but the effort put into the team. Scott Keller, Martin Lowry, and Bob Thomson are just a few of the players that worked hard to make Shaker's team a hard working, unified one.

sing it with a spirit that will start the world along

henry clay work

Shaker had the teams and the spectators necessary to make the football and basketball season successful. However, one more factor was needed to make the seasons complete. This other requirement was the cheerleaders, who worked steadily to promote school spirit. These seven girls led cheers at games, made up new cheers and routines, and aroused spirit at pep rallies with the help of the Spirit Squad.

icers assail all opposition

The school spirit built behind last year's State Champion team, and the return of the majority of last year's team primed this year's undefeated excellence before Thornton Park crowds. The team finished with the awesome record of 18-0-0 to retain first place, and attended the state tourney at Bowling Green. The Raiders scored 133 goals while only allowing 25 goals to other teams. With the aid of the outstanding defense of junior Al Hall and senior Mark Drollinger, goalie Mike Feigenbaum had the lowest goals-against average, 1.20 per game, of any goalie in the league. Shaker's offense was led by junior Dave Straffon, senior C.J. Kilroy, and senior Tom Matia, who amassed 62, 55, and 50 points respectively, and were among the highest scorers in the city. Also scoring high were juniors Bill Kiser and Gary Curtis, and sophomores Gar Corkran and Stu Mapes, all of whom will return next year along with defensive players D.J. Schultz and Bruce Kaufman.

glc: to teach to officiate to learn

This year's goal for Girls' Leaders was to bring a feeling of unity and fellowship to the club. We tried to accomplish this through teas, meetings and outside activities. Our goal came close to a reality because of the fact that we cut the membership down almost one half from last year and this allowed us to do more as a club. Miss Hill deserves a lot of credit and thanks as the advisor for Girls' Leaders Club. She has done far more than her share for the club and the whole Physical Education department in general. We just want her to know we appreciate all she has done for us.

Cathy Knight, president of GLC

The Swim Timers Club has worked hard for the Swim Team this season. We served breakfast to the swimmers as they practiced and we cheered them on as we timed at the meets. We hoped that we could get more support from the school, but the club's been more than work, it's been fun.

a poised leg, a quick somersault

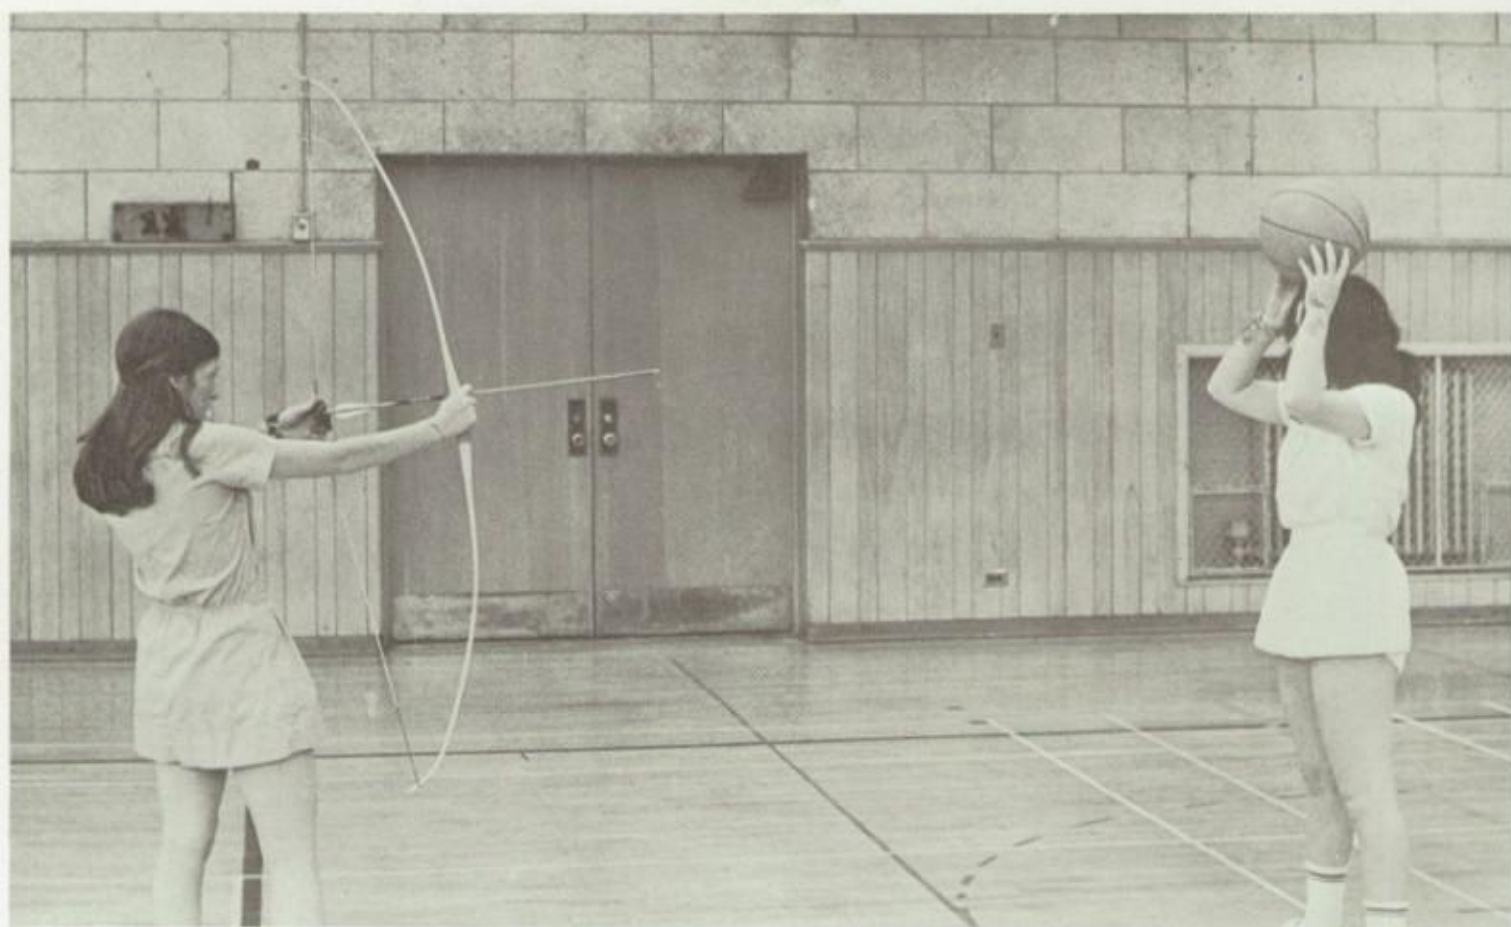

Sharcs live in a world of red eyes, chlorinated skin, and routines that leave you panting, but despite all these obstacles they manage to present a swim pageant every year. Our main purpose is to interpret a theme through synchronized skill and music. We decided to encourage friendship in Sharcs this year so that we can work together towards a better show. Our teacher-sponser, Mrs. Eichelberger, has helped us greatly and we would like to thank her for her contributions.

spring teams earn sectional titles

The 1971 baseball and golf season displayed a lot of team effort and turned out some skilled players. Among the outstanding players was Tony Manning who was asked to play with the Cleveland Indians.

Starting slowly, the varsity baseball team finished with a record of 17-14-0. The team, under Coach Fred Heinlen, won the sectional championship but lost in the district playoff. The J.V. team played together during the summer and proved themselves capable of varsity standards.

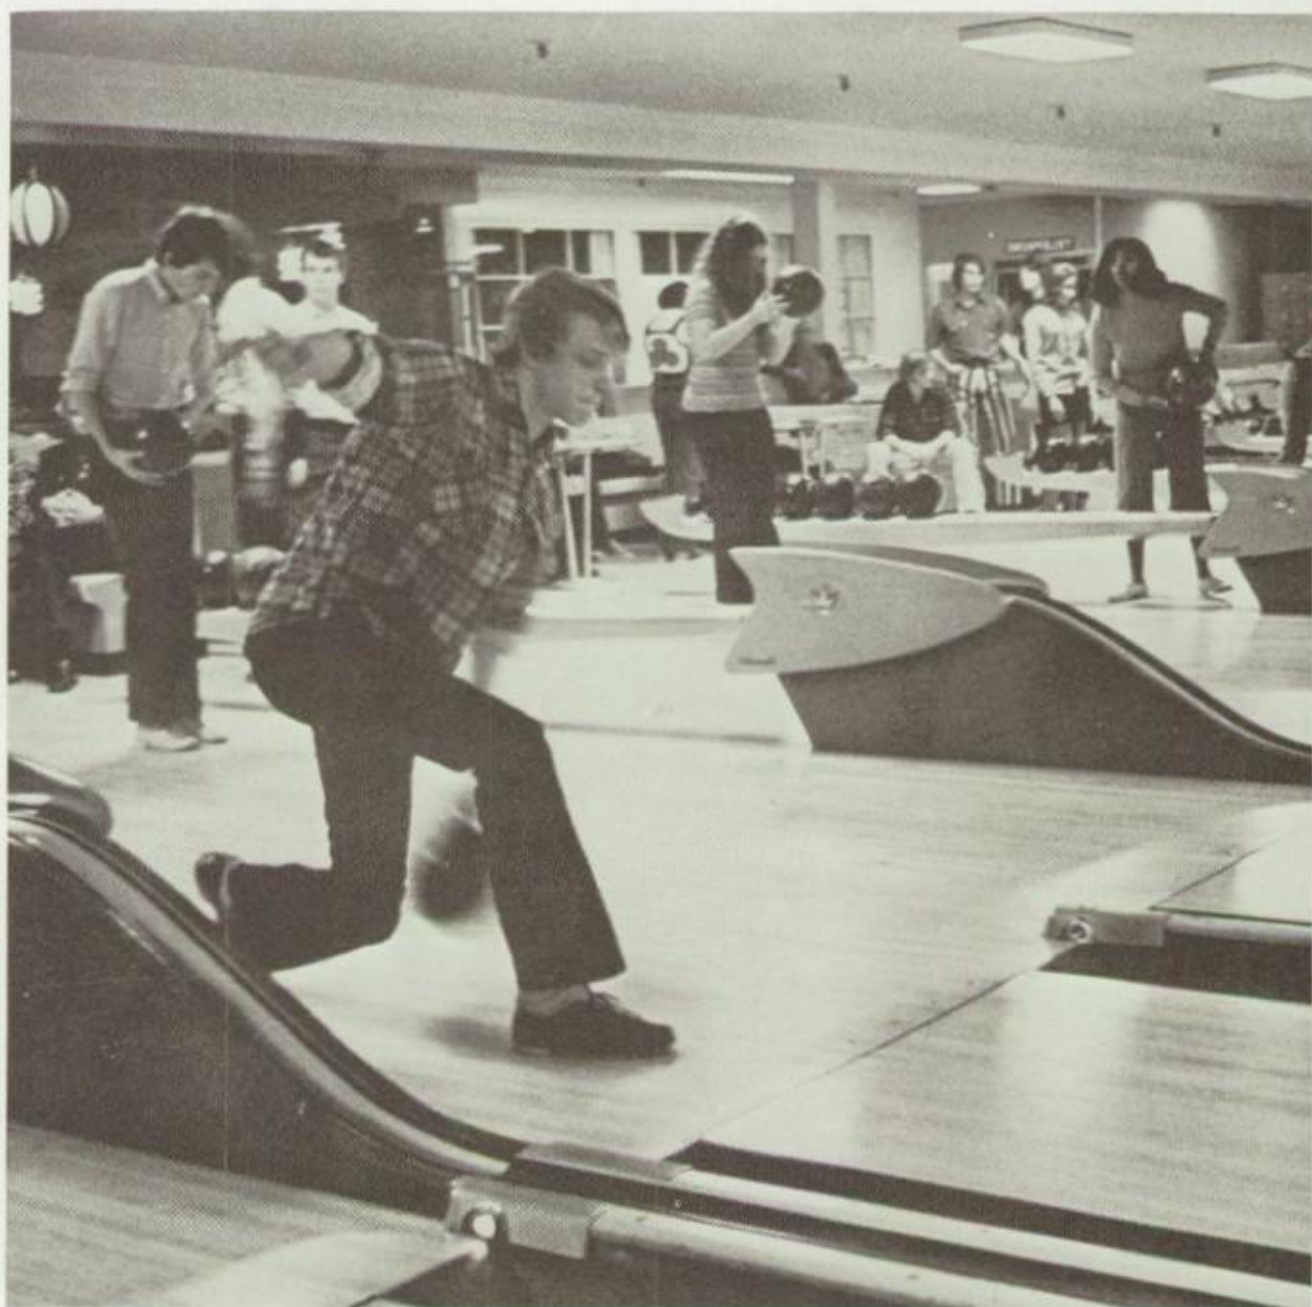

The golf team had a slightly disappointing season, partially due to poor weather. The final record was 4-6-0. The team finished third place in the L.E.L. and won the sectional championship.

Only when you drink from the river of silence shall you indeed sing.

And when you have reached the mountain top, then you shall begin to climb.

And when the earth shall claim your limbs, then shall you truly dance.

Kahlil Gibran
